SECTION A – COMPREHENSION

Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions that follow.

1. India is the world's largest milk producer, thanks to Operation Flood, an innovative scheme to increase milk production, undertaken by the National Dairy Development Board. We now produce 13.1% (74 million tonnes) of world output, which is valued at Rs.70,000 crore. But, the USA comes second with 13% followed by Russia, Germany, France and Brazil. But, the Indian dairy industry is likely to face problems because of the World Trade Organization (WTO) agreement, which has opened up trade in dairy products. Imported dairy products are now flooding the Indian market, affecting local products.
2. These imported products have prices that are lower than those of Indian products because they received subsidies in their own countries and enter India at zero duty (according to the WTO agreement). This gives imported dairy products an unfair advantage over the local products. The cost of milk production in India is the lowest in the world, with New Zealand coming second. These are also the only 2 countries, which do not subsidize milk production. In order to meet the challenge that they are being faced with, Indian dairy companies are now concentrating on improving the quality of the products. They are trying for the stamp of quality like ISO certification, and Hazard Analytical Critical Point certification, both of which are recognized internationally.
3. In the last two decades, the industry has been producing and marketing butter, ghee, cheese and skimmed milk, and now it is preparing to move into fermented products like dahi, sweet yoghurt, acidophilus health drinks, and calcium – rich and low-fat milks. The industry is also trying to develop and tap demand for traditional Indian milk sweets like rasagullas, pedas and even ready to eat payasam. The market for all this is estimated to be to the tune of Rs. 100 billion, but the organised sector in the country accounts for production of only 10 % of it. The rest is either imported or manufactured in the unorganized sector. Milk products also have good export potential. Luckily, lack of trained manpower is unlikely to be a problem as far as increasing production and exports is concerned, thanks to the National Dairy Research Institute's diploma, graduate and postgraduate programmes.
